My Dear Friends in Christ,

There is a story told about Muhammad Ali, the boxing champion who called himself "The Greatest". As he was boarding a flight, he was informed that he would have to fasten his seat belt. Ali apparently retorted that "Superman doesn't need a seatbelt"; the flight steward was said to respond "Superman doesn't need a plane to fly, either – fasten your seat belt".

The idea of "greatness" is something about which the world and Christianity greatly disagree. While the world may see power, prestige, wealth or might as being "marks" of greatness, the Christian sees greatness in the ability to serve. This idea of "servant leadership" is something which Jesus was constantly trying to instill in His disciples. Today's gospel is a perfect example of what it means to be a "servant-leader". As the disciples are engaging in ministry, James and John approach Jesus and inquire about a "place of honor" in the Kingdom. Jesus takes the request, no doubt ponders it, and asks to what lengths they are willing to go to be His disciples and to spread the message of the Kingdom. When James and John assure Jesus that they can do all that is asked, they are informed that these "places of honor" which they seek are only given by God the Father – they are not for Jesus to bestow. This request angers the others, and this is where Jesus "sets the record straight".

In informing the Twelve that they must serve others in their role as leaders, Jesus isn't just giving a pious platitude or paying "lip service" to this idea. Jesus, Himself, is ready to (and ultimately will) "put His money where His mouth is" by committing to this ideal with His very life. In giving of His whole self – body, mind, spirit – Jesus shows the others (and us) what it means to be a "servant-leader". By giving His life for the sake of all, Jesus isn't just readying the Kingdom for us – Jesus is showing us what it means to be a Christian here and now.

May we have the courage to put our needs, wants and desires aside so that others may know what it means to be a follower of Christ. May we unite our lives to Jesus by giving of our whole selves – body, mind, spirit – so that others may come to know what we have come to know: that Jesus, by being a servant-leader, has opened up the Kingdom and won for us newness of life!

Have a Blessed Week,

Fr. Paul

MY FRANCISCAN JOURNEY

In today's gospel, Jesus teaches His disciples that "whoever wishes to be great among you will be your servant; whoever wishes to be first among you will be the slave of all" (Mark 10:43-44). He went on to say that he had come "not be served but to serve" (Mark 10:45). Along with this passage, in the 13th Chapter of the Gospel of John (the pivotal chapter of St. John's gospel), Jesus gets up from the table after a final meal with his disciples and begins to wash their feet. The one they call "Teacher" and "Lord" performs for them an act of Middle Eastern hospitality usually reserved for the lowest slave in the household. "I have set you an example, that you also should do as I have done to you," Jesus tells the future shepherds of his flock (John 13:15). These moments of Jesus' ministry may have come as a shock to His disciples and other followers, but they should not come as a shock to us. Jesus is the epitome of the "servant-leader" and they show clearly to us that the concept of servant-leadership is nothing new in the Christian tradition.

St. Francis wanted this servant attitude of Christ to be mirrored in his own life and in the lives of his followers, especially the leaders among them. He frequently referenced the story of the foot-washing in John's gospel. He told the friars: "Let no one be called superior, but let everyone in general be called a lesser brother. And let one wash the feet of the other." (St. Francis of Assisi, The Earlier Rule, VI: 3-4). To those who exercised authority "in the world," Francis wrote: "Let the one to whom obedience has been entrusted and who is considered the greater be the lesser and the servant of the other brothers." (St. Francis of Assisi, Later Admonition and Exhortation, 42) In word and deed, Francis taught that the best leaders are self-effacing stewards who put the common good of all ahead of their own personal gain.

Another perspective of servant-leadership can be found in St. Clare of Assisi. She was a reluctant leader and would not have become abbess of her band of sisters had it not been for Saint Francis' request that she do so. The alternative was the potential closure of her monastery, and Francis likely recognized her abilities and qualities. Like Jesus, Francis did not treat women as second-class citizens. Both recognized that we are all equal in God's eyes. Clare displayed qualities that were dissimilar from those of typical abbesses in any era, and certainly behaved unlike other noble women. Like Francis, everyone was welcome to join them, whether from rich or poor backgrounds. Unlike other monasteries, where women brought their servants and dowries, everyone was an equal and everyone worked. She wanted them to live as family, advising her sisters to meet weekly and give each other honest feedback to live in deep respect and loving presence to each other.

In both Ss. Francis and Clare, Franciscans have exemplary models of what it means to be a servant-leader. Their embodiment of Jesus' call to serve and not be served is something for which every Franciscan, Secular and Religious, strives. Furthermore, carrying this idea of servant-leadership out into the world, into our family situations, our work environments, and our own personal prayer lives, is something every Secular Franciscan seeks to do so as to "bring Gospel to life and life to Gospel".

28th SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

What's in it for me?

I think we've all been guilty of looking at a situation and wondering what's in it for us. It doesn't matter if it's a particular work assignment, someone at the parish asking for help with the mission trip bake sale, or your spouse asking if you'll take over the grocery shopping this week. Often, our first reaction to one of these requests is a heavy sigh and the thought: "If I do this, what will I get?" Sometimes it surprises us to realize that the Apostles were no different. We tend to idolize these contemporaries of Christ as giants who walked with the Savior. But in reality, these individuals were merely human beings struggling to commit to the task of everyday stewardship.

In the Gospels, we see glimpses of them longing for praise and affirmation. We see them jockeying for positions of power within the group of twelve. We see them expect earthly rewards like honor and admiration. We see them acting a lot like us.

But in the end, we see them transformed by the grace of God. Like all the saints, their holiness stems from their commitment to their call. They stumble through, and as they stumble, they keep trusting God. They keep turning to Him. They keep asking for help. They don't give up just because they keep failing at it.

We are defined by what we give when we have no hope of being reimbursed, rewarded, or recognized. The Apostles understood this, eventually, and they gave accordingly. Most of them gave their very lives.

Remember, they're just like us. If they can do it, we can too.
